COVID-19 RELIEF AND SUPPORT

If you are a business committed to helping workers and local communities during COVID-19, how do you know if anyone is at risk of hardship or not meeting their basic expenses or food needs?

Here is how we can support:

1. IDENTIFY GAPS

CIG can help identify the gaps in social protection

2. IDENTIFY LOCAL PARTNERS

CIG can provide remote mentoring to site teams

3. IDENTIFY HOUSEHOLDS AT RISK

CIG is partnering with Ulula's digital platform

Identify gaps in government support to your workers, suppliers and local community

1. IDENTIFY GAPS

See here for real-time country-by-country updates on social protection and jobs programs planned, introduced or adapted in response to COVID-19. CIG can help identify the gaps in available support relevant to the context of your operations.

Identify local partners
that can fill any gaps in support

2. IDENTIFY LOCAL PARTNERS

CIG can provide remote mentoring to site teams on how to work with local authorities, traditional/Indigenous leaders, civil societies and NGOs to identify trusted local service providers that can offer targeted household-level support, e.g. vouchers for food, cash, transport, medical services, counselling support, and support to (re-)establish social networks.

Identify households at risk of hardship
and connect them
with support

3. IDENTIFY HOUSEHOLDS AT RISK

CIG has partnered with Ulula's digital platform to apply a Rapid Livelihoods Vulnerability Pulse Check, a survey that can be deployed anywhere in the world, by web, SMS, IVR (voice) and WhatsApp, and provides real-time insights based on anonymous feedback.

In addition, the survey offers a separate channel that connects specific cases of vulnerable households, based on their informed consent and confidentiality, with your local support services partners for a prompt response.

The survey can be deployed and a real-time dashboard set up within 2-4 weeks. CIG will provide remote mentoring to site teams on how to respond to the insights into people's situation.
